

Web developers work with teams using a variety of programming languages. These languages can be used to develop web applications that interface with databases. Many web developers work as client managers to define the parameters of web applications and make adjustments during